Food Training Class

The Environmental Health Division of the Dickinson-Iron District Health Department would like to remind all food service establishments of the food training classes being offered. One class will be held in the Kingsford office, Tuesday, May 6th, 2008 and the other on Wednesday, May 7th, 2008 in the Iron River office. Registration will be from 8:30 a.m. to 9:00 a.m. and the classes will be held from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

The training class is free and a certificate will be provided to each participant.

The training does not qualify the participants for management certification; however it will be very beneficial to all who attend as it will cover a multitude of food program issues such as food preparation, proper temperature controls, sanitation, the inspection process etc.

The department is also in the process of having one of its personnel becoming certified to teach the course for management certification. This will occur long before the required deadline of June, 2009 for each food establishment to have at least one of its personnel management certified which still leaves plenty of time to take this course.

In the meantime, attendance at this food training class would help employees prepare for the certification course.

The health department would prefer those planning on attending to pre-register by contacting the department at one of the following offices:

Dickinson County – (906) 779-7239

Iron County – (906) 265-4166
